THE TOTAL POPULATION FOUND TO BE 7,635,426.

Wild and Uncivilized Number 641.740-Luzon the Most Populous Island—The City of Manila Has 219,923 Inhabitants-Characteristics of the Savages.

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The population of the Philippine Islands, according to the census just completed under Brig.-Gen. J. P. Sanger, is 7,635,426, of which 647,740 are classified as wild and uncivilized, although not without some knowledge of the

This is the first accurate and complete enumeration of the Filipinos ever made, those undertaken by the Spanish authorities being largely estimates. It was taken by the Philippine Census Bureau, which was organized by Gen. Sanger.

The enumerators employed were mostly natives. The schedules were translated, transcribed and tabulated by the United States Census Office in this city.

Gen. Sanger's report gives the population of the Philippines by islands, provinces, municipalities and barrios. It is classified also by tribes and religions.

The tables give separate enumerations for 343 islands which bear names, and many others are grouped together unnamed. The most populous island is Luzon, which contains a total of 3,798,507, of which 223,506 are classified as wild. Panay is next in population with 743,646, of which 14,933 are wild; Cebu, third, with 592,247, all civilized, and Mindanao is fourth, with 499,634, of which 252,940 are wild. Jolo, with 44,718 inhabitants, contains only 1,270 who are civilized, and the province of Cotabato, with 125,875 people, has but 2,313 civilized.

The city of Manila contains 219,028 inhabitants, which includes 15,901 who reside on vessels in the harbor, while 11,460 live in the limits of the city walls.

Gen. Sanger says the aborigines of the Philippines are believed to be the Negritos, of which 23,000 still remain. They are distributed over many of the different provinces and live in a primitive state, having no fixed habitations or occupations. but wander about in the forests, living on such food as they can find. They are very short in stature, the males averaging only 4 feet 10 inches and the females even less. Their color is black, their hair wholly and bushy, and their toes are remarkably prehensile, they using them almost as well

These people, says the report, probably approach as nearly to the conception of primitive man as any people thus far discovered. Their origin is shrouded in obscurity, but from the fact that similar types are found in the Malay peninsula and on the islands in the Bay of Bengal, it is concluded they once occupied the entire Malay archipelago.

Of the other wild tribes in the islands the most important are the Lygorotes, in

Of the other wild tribes in the islands the most important are the Igorotes, in northern Luzon, who are divided into several branches, with different names. One of these branches, inhabiting the subprovince of Bontoc, are said to be the most famous of head hunters. Another curious tribe of head hunters is the Ibilao, sometimes called Ilongot, in the province of Isabella, while in Mindanao are seventeen wild tribes, nearly all of which have the of Isabelia, while in whitedance are seventeen wild tribes, nearly all of which have the beliefs and ceremonial customs of savages. They not only take the heads of vanquished enemies, but their hands and hearts as well, and offer human sacrifices to their deities.

The report divides the civilized Filipinos into eight tribes, the Bicol, Cagayan, Ilocano, Pampangan, Pangasinan, Tagalog, Visayan and Zambalan, the most numerous of which is the Visayan. While the great mass of the people are Malays, and had common origin, there is a difference in their written and spoken languages, but not much in their customs. For such progress as in their customs. For such progress as they had made they are indebted, says the report, somewhat to the Chinese, with whom they came in contact hundreds of years ago, before the arrival of the Spanish, and since then to the religious orders, which had con-tributed largely to their civilization and sinelago was divided into five dioceses and 746 regular parishes, 105 mission parishes and 116 missions. Notwithstanding the inestimable services rendered by the friars, the report says, they succeeded in exciting the bitter antagonism of the Filipinos, which was beyond question of the Filipinos. of the Fulipinos, which was beyond question a powerful incentive to the revolution of 1896. Now, that the friars land question has been settled, it is probable, says Gen. Sanger, that the Roman Catholic clergy will substitute a large number of the friars and that all cause of agitation on their account will be removed.

In a chapter on the Bicol tribe, the Governor of the province of Ambos Camarines

ernor of the province of Ambos Camarines remarks that a very noticeable charac-teristic of that people is the aggressive-ness displayed by the females and their ness displayed by the remales and their evident superiority to the males in busi-ness capacity. Wherever a family had risen from the lower ranks of society to a position of comparative affluence and social importance, it was generally found due to the tact, energy and close attention to business of the female member of the matrimonial partnership.

The Hocanos, to quote one of their number, like all nations of the world, have many and varied superstitions, among them one that they do not take a bath, marry or start on a voyage on Thursdays. The raven they consider a bird of ill omen, and when it croaks it is regarded as a sign of some misfortune. A gambler, if he meets a woman on the way to a gambling house, returns, as he believes it a sign of bad luck.

These superstitions, and others of a more injurious nature, says the report, prevail generally among the ignorant masses, and are not unlike those which afflict many people in the United States and other countries. It was needless to say that they interfered with the daily affairs of life and were the cause of much unnecessary anxiety and suffering, and sometimes of serious crimes. Fortunately, they would disappear as the people became more intelligent and rational and therefore less inclined to believe in bogies of any kind.

AFFECTS 400 RETIRED OFFICERS. Cannot Receive Pay of Higher Grade Unti Confirmed by the Senate.

Washington, June 2.-The Treasur Department has rendered a decision of considerable importance to the more than four hundred retired army officers who, by the recent act of Congress, are to be advanced a grade higher than that now

Some time ago an opinion was given by Judge Advocate-General Davis that President Roosevelt could make recess promotions of these officers so that they could be advanced without waiting to submit their names to the Senate for confirmation. When the pay papers of Major F B. Fuller, retired, who had been advanced under the new law to Lieutenant-Colonel, reached the office of the Comptroller they were held up and the War Department then asked the Comptroller to decide whether the officer could be paid for the advanced grade as Lieutenant-Colonel before he is confirmed by the Senate and to also decide on what date the higher pay begins. Assistant Comptroller Mitchell has advised the War Department that if Gen. Davis's opinion is correct, that the act created an office and there was a vacancy to which Major Fuller could be advanced to which Major Fuller could be advanced by the President, then the vacancy existed during the session of the Senate which could be filled by a recess appointment, "but the pay of the higher grade comes within the prohibition of Section 1761 of the Revisd Statutes and cannot be paid until after his confirmation". He adds:

"If the act did not create an office and a vacancy to be filled by a recess appointment, then Major Fuller cannot become entitled to receive the higher pay until he has been confirmed by the Senate, because it requires the joint action of the President and the Senate to vest in Major Fuller the right to hold the higher rank and draw the pay."

Mr. Mitchell declines to determine the question as to what date pay begins until it shall arise upon the confirmation of an officer. War Department officers are not in accord with the decision of the Treasury Department. Secretary Taft holds that as Congress left the advancement of the officers within the discretion of the President the vacancies are by the President's own making and are not created dent's own making and are not created by the act itself.

The officers affected have retained counsel and purpose making a fight for reconsideration by the Treasury Department, and if they fail to secure a favorable decision they will then carry it to the Court

EDITOR DANIELS RELEASED. Judge Pritchard Grants a Writ of Habeas

Corpus Returnable at Raleigh, N. C. WASHINGTON, June 2.-Judge Pritchard of the United States Court for the Fourth Circuit to-day granted a writ of habeas corpus releasing Editor Josephus Daniels of the Charlotte News and Observer from jail at Raleigh, N. C., where he was committed for contempt by United States

Daniels published a criticism of Judge Purnell's action in appointing a receiver for the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad, and was adjudged in contempt, fined $2,000 and committed to the custody of the United States Marshal until paid. The road is largely the property of the State of North Carolina, and charges of mismanagement recently resulted in the appointment of a commission by Gov. Ayoook. The specific of the commission in part sustained of a commission by Gov. Ayoock. The report of the commission in part sustained the charges, whereupon one of the individual stockholders, John C. Cuyler of New York, asked that the road be placed in the hands of a receiver. Judge Purnell first appointed V. E. McBee, but this was subsequently vacated, and last Saturday Judge Purnell appointed Thomas D. Meares as receiver and McBee as coreceiver. It was upon Judge Purnell's latter action that the criticism was passed. McBee was indicted in the State courts on the charge that the criticism was passed. McBee was indicted in the State courts on the charge of conspiracy in assuming the first receiver-ship, but is now out on bail.

The writ of habeas corpus granted to-day is returnable at Raleigh to-morrow, when the arguments will be heard there by Judge Pritchard. Judge Pritchard took the oath of office as Circuit Judge yesterday and came to Washington to arrange for the transfer of his household effects to Asheville, where he will in future reside. As Washington was outside his circuit, the Judge and his party went to Alexandria, which is within his jurisdiction.

ANNOYED HIGH SCHOOL GIRL. When They Gathered Him In.

Peter Garrahan, 49 years old, who said he is a real estate broker living at 112 West Nineteenth street, this city, was arraigned before Police Justice Higgins in the First Criminal Court, Jersey City, yesterday, for annoying a high school girl and incidentally spoiling a plan made by Detective Frank Bennett to catch another man who had been writing letters to the girl pleading for an interview. The girl's name was not made public.

The unidentified letter writter said he was charmed with the appearance of the girl and asked her to meet him in Exchange place on wednesday evening. The police were notified and on their advice the girl consented to meet the man. Detective

Bennett went along with her,

He brushed against her, spoke a few words and the girl ran. Garrahan started after her and Bennett placed him under arrest. The girl was too upset by the adventure to keep the police arrangements for a meeting with the letter writer. Garrahan was fined $10 by Justice Higgins. The girl did not appear in court.

TRAVIS IN SANDWICH FINAL.

TO MEET BLACKWELL TO-DAY FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP.

Prowess of the American Creates a Sensa tion Among the Golfers Abroad-Beat in the Semi-Final, Horace Hutchinson Who Had Put Out the Titleholder

Special Cable Despatch to THE SU LONDON, June 2.-Walter J. Travis, the American champion, continued his record of victory in the amateur golf championship contest at Sandwich to-day and will play in the final round. In the fifth round Travis beat H. H. Hilton, who was the amateur champion in 1900 and 1901 and open champion in 1892 and 1897, by 5 up and 4 to play. In the sixth and semi-final round Travis defeated the veteran Horace G. Hutchinson, who held the title in 1886 and 1887, the first years the contest was instituted, by 3 up.

Travis's opponent in the final match will be Edward Blackwell, who beat W. E. Fairlie in the fifth round and J. E. Laidlay in the semi-final.

Travis's victory over Hilton caused big sensation among the British golfers. Hutchinson, whom Travis put out in the semi-final, was matched with Robert Maxwell, the present champion, in the preceding round and defeated him on the last hole. Hutchinson was runner-up to Maxwell at Muirfield last year. The summary of to-day's play follows: Fifth Round—W. J. Travis beat H. H. Hilton, 5 up and 4 to play: H. G. Hutchinson beat R. Maxwell 1 up; J. E. Laidlay beat O. C. Bevan, 6 up and 5 to play: E. Blackwell beat W. E. Fairlie, 4 up and 3 to play.

Semi-Final Round-W. J. Travis beat H. G. Hutchinson, 3 up and 2 to play; E. Blackwell beat J. E. Laidlay, 2 up and 1 to play;

Oddly enough, to-day's finalists are accredited with the two longest drives on the books, Blackwell of 387 yards at St. Andrews and Travis of 362 yards at Garden City, but while the former is always called "The Swiper" abroad, and owes his greatest fame to the long game, Travis does not shine especially in long driving among our players. He had studied out on his own account that accuracy was of the first importance from the tee prior to the visit here of Harry Vardon, in 1900, and from that player Travis learned that he had adopted the right principle. Travis is the first holder of the amateur championship of the United States to start in the the first holder of the amateur champion-ship of the United States to start in the amateur championship of Great Britain, and, whether he wins to-day or not, to reach the final is a lesson to the world as to the high quality of American amateur golf. That the final is at thirty-six holes should That the final is at thirty-six holes should help Travis, for the only times of consequence that he has been beaten in this country since 1899 have been in eighteen hole matches, and these occasions have been few and far between. An Australian by birth, Travis is a naturalized citizen, and played his first golf in this country in 1896. He won the M. G. A. championship in 1900 and 1902, and he is now our amateur champion for the third time, having held the title also in 1900 and 1901. the title also in 1900 and 1901.

Blackwell last year lost in the fourth round of the amateur championship to H. E. Hambro of St. George's, but the match was carried to the twenty-first hole. It is the first time he has been in the final. At the St. Andews spring meeting three Andrews spring meeting three ks ago Blackwell was a disappointment R. Maxwell winning in 79, for after a good start Blackwell did no better than 84. The year before he won the Bombay medal at the same meeting with 82. As far back as 1892 Blackwell won the William IV. medal with 82, and he has had many successes at St. Andrews. Blackwell is well known at St. Andrews. Blackwell is well known here, for he was ranching in the West for many years, leaving Scotland as a young man and returning to his home about 1891. On the day before he first sailed for the United States Blackwell defeated the open champion, Jack Simpson, in a thirty-six hole match, and on his return he was soon back in the first flight of golfers.

On the Morristown Field Club courts yesterday play was continued in the club handicap tournament. In the men's singles C. W. Throckmorton won a closely contested match from B. Watts, the win placing the former in the third round. Watts made a stiff fight for the match, forcing his opponent for a deuce score in both sets played. Watts had the advantage of a handicap of half fifteen, but this was not sufficient to take the necessary points. The score was 7—5, 8—6. In the winners' singles Miss Hackstaff and Miss J. Lunds have each passed the opening round, the former by default.

EDITHA LAUNCHED.

Mrs. John H. Hanan Christens Her Hus

band's Big Auto Boat. The big auto boat Editha, which has been built by Ayers at Nyack from designs by William Gardner for John H. Hanan, was successfully launched yesterday afternoon. This boat when finished will have two 300 horse-power gasolene motors similiar to those in the Standard, and it is expected that she will make twenty-three miles an hour.

A party of friends of Mr and Mrs. Hanan left the Columbia Yacht Clubhouse at the morning on the steamer Fletcher, and in spite of the inclement weather all had a good time The Fletcher got to Nyack in time and then Mrs. Hanan and some friends boarded the new yacht. Mrs. Hanan christened the boat and was on board as the Editha took her first like it is the ward. and was on board as the Editia took her lifed dip into the water. The Editha is a handsome boat 115 feet over all, 103 feet on the water line, 15 feet 10 inches beam and 5 feet draught. She has a flush deck aft, a cabin house amidships in which is the dining saloon and a turtle deck forward. Below there are two large double staterooms, a saloon and quarters for the crew.

Princeton's Vigorous Cheers for Baseball

Nine Disturbed Harvard. PRINCETON, N. J., June 2.—The editorial and communication in Wednesday's Harvard Trimson, charging Princeton with overstepping the limits of good sport "by the incessan cheering in the last three innings of Saturday's baseball game," was read here to-day by the undergraduates with mingled feelings of amusement and anger. It is safe to say, judging from undergraduate opinion today, that there will be no apology offered to Harvard. On the contrary, a demand will probably be made to Harvard for a full will probably be made to Harvard for a full and satisfactory explanation of the absurd charge that Coach Hilbebrand was on the coaching lines during the ninth inning.

Hilbebrand did not leave the players' bench during the entire game, while Coach Frantz of Harvard during Princeton's turn in the field stood directly behind the catcher in order to get a line on Byran's curves.

The authorities here are inclined to smile at the assertion that Princeton overstepped the limits of good sport by cheering the nine at critical moments of the game. They point to the fact that at Cambridge last year, when Harvard began to gain on Princeton in the ninth inning, the Harvard rooters, thinking there was a chanceto win, "let forth a perfect bedlam of noise," and kept it up to the end of the game. In 1900 Princeton had the same experience at Cambridge. experience at Cambridge.

Hanlon-McGovern Bout May Be Shifted to

Philadelphia. The battle recently arranged between Terry McGovern and Eddle Hanlon may simmer down to a six round bout after all. When the men signed articles a few weeks ago they agreed to allow clubs to bid for the match, limiting the time for the proposals to June 15. The other day an offer came from Morris Levy of the Hayes Valley A. C., San Francisco. Levy's bid, however, was SUMMER RESORTS.
